

Deep, deep down in the dark, dark woods
stood a tiny pine tree.

The tree was the tiniest tree in the whole forest and all she could do was look up at the other trees and dream.

She wished one day to be a Christmas tree, dressed from tip to trunk
in the finest decorations,
surrounded by laughter and love.

But the other big trees
thought she was being silly.

"Don't be daft!
No one wants a tiny tree! They want a big tall tree like me!"
said one of the big tall trees.

Then one day everything changed.

The tiny tree began to shake as she heard a great rumbling and buzzing off in the distance.

"Wh..What's happening?" she said, quivering.

A great growling machine was buzzing through the forest, chopping down trees one by one!

The tiny tree was so frightened... she fainted.
