

Once there was a little girl called Meg,
who invented her own kind of happiness.

It tasted of chocolate ice cream,
apple juice and sunshine.

And it smelled of warm
biscuits and the seaside.

It was red, yellow
and all of the other
best colours.

Meg took it everywhere with her.

